

3.1

PARKS & RECREATION

60% of natural open spaces in Los Angeles are not formally landscaped.

Griffith Park is the largest municipal park with an urban wilderness area in the United States.

3.2

RIVERS & BEACHES

The Los Angeles River transverses 32 miles within city limits and flows an additional 19 miles before emptying into the Pacific Ocean in Long Beach.

20 miles of shoreline intermittently extends north from San Pedro to Venice Beach to the Pacific Palisades.

OPEN SPACE

Los Angeles' open spaces include the scenic treasures in the San Gabriel Mountain Range, our globally recognized beaches, an intricate network of rivers and trails, 36,000 acres of park and recreation spaces, and the pedestrian paths that connect us to these landmarks.

3.3

WILDLANDS

Wildlands serve as the primary habitat for local flora and fauna.

Our wildlands are home to hundreds of species of animals and plants and also serve as a temporary layover for many migratory animals.

3.4

CONNECTIONS

Over 7,500 miles of streets and 800 miles of alleyways exist within Los Angeles and present an opportunity for increased pedestrian connectivity.

Approximately 450 historic stairways can be found in the City.

